

Psychology 270 Informed Consent for Research Participation

Please read this consent agreement carefully before deciding whether to participate in this study.

Why am I being asked?

You are being asked to participate in a research study that is being conducted by undergraduate Psychology students enrolled in a research methods course at UNC Chapel Hill, under the supervision of Natasha Parikh, Ph.D. (nparikh@unc.edu). Your participation in this research will help students complete a class requirement. Please keep in mind that your decision to participate is entirely voluntary, and you may decline participation at any time. We ask that you read this form and ask any questions you may have before agreeing to take part in this research.

Purpose of the research:

The purpose of this research is to better understand aspects of human thinking, feeling, and behavior. All data from this research are gathered for scientific purposes with the intent of contributing to our understanding of human psychology. The data that students gather will be presented as a requirement for a psychology research methods course.

What you will do in this research:

If you agree to participate in this research, you may be asked to do one or more of the following:

1. Provide your responses to commonly used psychological measures and inventories that will be used to assess aspects of your personality and/or your beliefs and opinions.
2. Share your thoughts, feelings, or opinions in response to a set of information provided by the researchers, which will be presented in either written, auditory, or visual format. This information may cover a variety of topics but will generally be information that you could reasonably be exposed to over the course of your normal, everyday life. You will not be exposed to any information in any format (e.g., written, audio or visual) that is offensive or objectionable by any reasonable person's standards.
3. Complete a short activity such as solving a puzzle or solving a set of problems.

How many people will take part in this study?

Approximately total number people at this institution (OR) multiple locations will take part in this study.

Time required:

The total time of your participation will be less than 45 minutes.

Risks:

There are minimal anticipated risks associated with participating in this study. Participation will not involve any psychological, legal, social, emotional, or physiological risk that is greater than what you experience in your normal, everyday life.

Benefits:

By participating in this research, you may gain insight into how psychological research is conducted. At the end of the study, we will provide a thorough explanation of the experiment and of our hypotheses. We will describe the potential implications of the results of the study both if our hypotheses are supported and if they are disconfirmed. If you wish, you can send an email message to Dr. Natasha Parikh (nparikh@unc.edu) and we will send you a copy of any summaries of our research results.

Confidentiality:

Your participation in this research will remain confidential, and your identity will not be stored with your data. Your responses will be assigned a code number, and if you have been requested to provide your contact information for the purpose of following up on your research participation, any lists connecting your name with this number will be destroyed once you have participated in that session, or after data collection for this project is complete. No video or audio recording will be taken.

Participation and withdrawal:

Your participation in this research is completely voluntary, and you may withdraw at any time without penalty. You may withdraw by informing the researcher that you no longer wish to participate (no questions will be asked).

To Contact the Person Supervising this Research:

If you have questions please contact Dr. Natasha Parikh, Department of Psychology & Neuroscience, UNC Chapel Hill, 235 E. Cameron Avenue #238, Chapel Hill, NC 27599-3270. Email: nparikh@unc.edu
