

Debrief Example

In this study, we were interested in the relationship between mood and music choice. Some participants watched a happy video, while others watched a sad video, and these videos were meant to put you into a specific mood. Then, we had participants choose from a variety of genres. We expected people in the sad mood to choose traditionally slower music, like classical, country, or R&B, and people in the happier mood to choose more upbeat music, like pop and hip hop. We thank you for your participation.
